Wii Call of Duty Black Ops Headset...or...

Aug 13, 2011
I have a Call of Duty Black Ops Headset that worked fine on the first Wii system i had, not i have a different (used) system and the headset no longer works. When i plug it into the USB port the light goes on on the headset so it gets power, but it does not show up as being connected. Is there any way to test the USB port to see if the problem is there or in the headset?

To clarify, i have a Headbanger Call of Duty Black Ops Headset, it DOES have the Nintendo seal of approval try doing a system update as the used system may have older firmware that doesnt recognize the headset if the problem still isnt fixed, contact nintendo and/or the company that produces the headsets
